THEORY OF MEDICATED INHALATION.

DRS. HUNTER AND RAMSAY

ON THE CURABILITY OF CONSUMPTION.

As it is the aim of these letters to remove popular errors in regard to pulmonary diseases, we will say a few words on the curability of consumption. It is not, we think, assuming too much to say that most persons entertain grave doubts on this subject, while many are so thoroughly convinced of the impossibility of curing this disease that they do not hesitate to characterize all medication having that object in view as "dishonest" and "empirical." Tubercles in the lungs are, in their opinion, equivalent to the hand of death; and the delusion is so deeply rooted and inveterate that we can hardly hope common sense, plain facts, and unimpeachable testimony will prove sufficient to dispel it. Still, it will not do to lose faith in the wisdom of the old Roman maxim, Magna est veritas et pre-

Before we proceed to give the testimony of others, let us endeavor to make our own views clear on this point. The question is, Can consumption be cured? Our answer is unequivocally, Yes, even after tubercles are depositedafter they have softened and broken down the air-cells and bronchial tubes of the part in which deposited, forming a cavity, the lungs can still be healed, and the patient regain comfortable health. Neither the presence of tubercles, nor the actual existence of a tuberculous abscess in the lungs, precludes the patient from the hope of recovery. These are our views, and however much they may appear at variance with the opinion generally entertained, they are borne out by experience.

Let it not, however, be inferred from what we have said that we do not regard consumption as a most alarming disease, nor that it can be cured as readily in the last as in the first stage. What we mean is that this disease is not necessarily fatal in any stage-that patients may recover after the lungs have actually undergone partial destruction by ulceration.

How does cure take place? It sometimes takes place by absorption-that is to say, the tubercular deposit is taken up by the absorbent vessels, and expelled from the system, among the excretions of the body. When the tubercular matter is in the first stage, or not far advanced in the second, cure generally takes place in this way. You have, no doubt, often observed swellings disappear, after they had existed for weeks; have known persons to regain the natural size of the neck, after years of affliction from goitre; have seen dropsical effusions removed; and boils which seemed about to come to a head fade gradually away. Whoever has seen these changes has witnessed the cure of a disease by absorption. Let us make this perfectly plain. Certain vessels have the power of taking up and expelling from the body impurities and morbid deposits. By the action of these vessels the tubercular matter deposited in the lungs is removed, in the same way that water disappears when dropsy is cured without tapping.

Another way in which cure takes place is by the softening and expulsion of the tubercular matter, and the subsequent cicatrization of the cavity formed. When a boil breaks, its matter is discharged, and then the part heals up, leaving a scar; when an abscess forms in the flesh and comes to a head, it discharges a quantity of pus, and then, under proper treatment, the diseased part heals and becomes apparently sound; when a carbuncle has eaten a large hole into the flesh, the dead parts gradually separate from the living, the cavity granulates and fills up with new matter, a callous forms over the whole, and health is re-established; when a scrofulous gland breaks, and after discharging its contents, heals up again; when a burnt surface granulates, throws out coagulable lymph, and finally becomes covered with a kind of skin which we call a cicatrix-we have in each case an example of what takes place in the lungs when a tubercular abscess heats. The parts destroyed are never reformed; but new matter is thrown out, which draws the sides of the cavity together, and seals it up. When a boil or carbuncle is completely healed, it ceases to secrete pus; and so also when a cavity in the lungs heals, the patient ceases to expectorate, because pus is no longer formed. To all intents and purposes, the cure is as per fect in one case as in the other.

But it may be said the blood is always impure in consumption, and hence cure will not take place so readily in this disease as in the other diseases mentioned. That is very true, but it does not follow that it will not do so if the physician restores the blood to its usual purity by proper inhalations. To accomplish this should always be the first aim of treatment, for assuredly no cure can be expected so long as the blood remains loaded with carbonaceous impurity. We know of no means by which the blood can be deprived of carbon except by the use of highly oxygenated inhalations; nor of any method by which we can act directly upon an abscess in the lungs (as we do upon a carbuncle on the external surface of the body), except by medicating the air which the patient breathes. When a more successful method of treatment is discovered, the profession will have reason to congratulate itself on having effected an improvement upon nature!

We presume there are to be found among the medical men some who, drawing their conclusions from the results of their own practice, still feel disposed to deny that it is possible to cure consumption. To a physician who has grown gray in practice, and yet, among the hundreds who have sought his advice, cannot recall to recollection even one consumptive invalid saved through his ministrations, this skepticism is, perhaps, natural. But let us see what those who have carefully investigated the matter say on the subject.

The late Dr. Swett remarks :-"Another important question presents itself, Is consumption a curable disease? and if so, what is the proportion of cases which recover? The general impression in the medical protession is that a patient with consumption is doomed to death. * * * I have known a number of patients, during the last fifteen years, who have had the evidences of consumption, and sometimes in an advanced stage, who finally recovered, and are now in the enjoyment of good health." (Page 279.)

Sir James Clark says:-"That pulmonary consumption admits of a cure is no longer a matter of doubt. It has been clearly demonstrated by the researches of Laen-nec, and other modern pathologists," (Page 137.)

Professor Carswell observes:-

"Pathological anatomy has, perhaps, never afforded more conclusive evidence in proof of the curability of a disease than it has in that of tubercular consumption. (Cyc. Prac. Med.) And Lacanec declares that the cure of consumption, where the lungs are not completely disorganized, ought not to be looked upon as at all impossible, in reference either to the nature of the disease or of the organ affected. " * The destruction of a part of the substance of the lungs is by no means necessarily mortal." (Page 238.)

Then let us hear no more of the incurability of this disease, but let all good men unite to encourage and stimulate to increased exertion those who are zealously laboring in the great cause of science and humanity.

INTERESTING SUBGICAL OPERATIONS .- Dr. Carnochan performed two more interesting opera-tions in surgery at the State Hospital on Saturlay, with the nitrous oxide gas as the anæsthetic agent. The first was the amputation of the thigh. The patient-a male adult-was put into the anasthetic sleep in one minute and sixteen seconds. Dr. Carnochan performed the amputation in thirty seconds, and in thirty-two seconds more the patient awoke to consciousness without nauses or the least unpleasant symptoms. He stated that he had felt no pain during the opora-tion. The second operation—on a male adult was the amputation of the leg. The time in producing sleep was fifty-five seconds. The time of the operation was one minute and forty-five seconds. The time in recovering consciousness was twenty seconds. There was no nausea or sickness. A large number of surgeons and students were present, who expressed surprise and delight at the bright appearance of the patients after recovering from the effects of the gas. It seemed to be the universal opinion that the gas would supersede all other anæsthetics no w in use. Dr. Colton administered the gas for these operations, and performed his part well. His establishment, No. 737 Walnut street, is now open, and Dr. Colton is always present to administer this admirable preparation.

THE WARS IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Brazil and Paraguay-Spain and Chili. By way of Panama we have later news from South America.

PARAGUAY.

The Paraguayan army, which it was at one time supposed would cease their retrograde movement, and make a good stand or even ad-vance again on the city of Corrientes, has definitely evacuated the province of that nation and retired into their own territory. This gives the ailies the advantage of a better base of operations, especially in connection with the Bra-zilian fleet; but the reliance upon the efficacy of the latter is not very great, and further, the diffliculties of attacking the Paraguayans have been enormously increased.

They are now concentrated, offering a very respectable front to their enemies, and are well defended by the natural configuration of their country as well as by numerous works in advan-tageous positions. Besides all this, the heat and the unhealthiness of the swamps begin to tell upon the allied armies, and it is, therefore, not to be wondered at that some newspapers on the other side of the Andes talk of deferring the renewal of hostilities, and even of a friendly settle-

CHILL. The blockading vessels on the Chillan coast emained at their respective stations December 9. The Numancia, iron-clad, had arrived at Calderas on her way down to Valparaiso; while the Villa de Madrid was, at last accounts, anchored in the harbor of Coquimbo, after a cruise between Valparaiso and the latter port, evidently on the look out for the Esmeralda.

The latter vessel, together with the captured Covadonga, have again entirely disappeared. While some suppose that they have left for Montevideo, others are of opinion that they have sailed northward, in order to join the Peruvian squadron which was to assemble in one of the southerly ports of Peru. The Apprimac and America had left the Chinchas for the same port. What makes this supposition more probable is, her down trip, that the Limena, on vessels, apparently men-of-war, steaming north-

Several Chilinos and foreigners in Montevideo have purchased and fitted out three or four privateers, to sail under the Chilian flag, and prey on the commerce of Spain on that coast. - N. Y.

CEMETERY AT BALL'S BLUFF .- The remains of our soldiers who fell in the unfortunate battle of Ball's Bluff, October 21, 1861, were hastily buried. after the engagement, in shallow trenches or graves. The thin covering of earth gradually washed away from over the graves, leaving the honored remains, in many instances, expo Lieutenani-Colonel James M. Moore Quartermaster, has recently selected a site, and located a national burial ground on the spot where the gallant General Baker fell. The cemetery is on a bluff eighty feet above the and commands a fine view of the surrounding country, and is about one and threequarters of a mile from Leesburg. It is circular shape, and enclosed by a neat paling tence. In the centre is a mound, intended to receive flag-staff, and on the inner circumierence of the circle are the graves of the fallen brave, whose been carefully collected and remains have interred; each marked with a tablet similar to those in the cemeterles near Washington. ACCIDENT TO GOVERNOR BROWNLOW .- On yesterday week Governor Brownlow was riding from Knoxville towards Nashville in a train of cars. About twenty miles from Knoxville the car containg the Governor was separated from the train and thrown off the track. The Governor had his left foot and ankle bruised, but was not otherwise injured. Several of the party in the car were slightly hurt. Some malignant Rebel is supposed to have tampered with the screws and lastenings of the car. The Governor is in the city in better health than during the summer.

MATTERS OVER THE RIVER.

SOUTH JERSEY AND PHILADELPHIA,-The railroads constructed in South Jersey within a few years have contributed invaluable advana rew years have contributed invaluable advantages to the mercantile and other interests of Philadelphia. Formerly, most of the supplies needed by the inhabitants of the bay and sea shore were obtained from New York, from the fact that "all along shore" reside coasting owners and captains who traded to that city carrying wood truck on traded to that city, carrying wood truck, oysters, and fish; and the selection of goods was left to the taste of the masters of sloops and schooners. Now, the Camden and Atlantic, and West Jersey Railroad, with its two important branches, reach the most of these localities, attording storekeepers facilities for making their own selections, with but little loss of time, and giving the ladies ample opportunity for shopping.

These conveniences, also, have increased the trade of Philadelphia in proportion as they have added to the population, and brought into prositable cultivation thousands of acres of bush land. Villages have sprung up, as if by magic, along all these roads, and the two great watering places have become peopled with permanent residents. Manufacturing establishments have been erected in various places, mechanical and agricultural pursuits are expanding, and as the wilderness is made to bloom, business progresses. To these railroads, therefore, Philadelphia is in-debted for an increase of trade which will compare favorably with that afforded by any two roads in Pennsylvania. Look, too, at the wealth and luxury accruing from these facilities. The rich products of South Jersey are brought direct to the Philadelphia markets. But for the increased supply thus But for the increased supply thus afforded, her growing population would be severely taxed for the want of a full supply.

Grain, fruit, vegetables, fish, oysters, game, etc., are now brought to market in quadruple quantities since railroads have been established, while the supply of all kinds of meats, poultry, eggs, butter, etc., is multiplied. It is as tortunate for Philadelphia as South Jersey that our internal improvements have developed the rearces of this portion of the State so rapidly; for it has served to maintain an equilibrium in the price of products, which the unprecedented increase of population in that great city must otherwise have sadly deranged. Nor is it a lesser blessing that this additional supply has done much to place the necessaries of life within the reach of the thousands who "sweat for bread" in that city.

But not the least of the advantages afforded

Philadelphia by the railroads of South Jersey are the facilities for the transhipment of goods, when navigation meets with obstructions such as we have experienced within the past week. How often it occurs that vessels are detained below, with valuable freight for consignees, who frequently suffer great loss by delay! The market price may be lost, contracts with jobbers may be broken, or the demand for them, from various causes, may cease to exist from delay. Now, it will be an easy matter to place all essential to immediate use on the railroad, and bring then up to the city. These facilities, however, will still further increased by running a track to the Cape Island wharf, from whence goods can be taken from ice-bound vessels, and sent direct Philadelphia.

We might add that these conveniences embrace another advantage, equally important to the merchants of that city. It enables them to compete more successfully with New York. The pretensions of the latter to commercial superiority over the former will soon be made to sink into an empty boast by the important facilities afforded Philadelphia, derived from the growing improvements of South Jersey.

Lodgers.-The Station House in Camden during the present cold and disagreeable weather has been an appropriate study for philanthropists and philosophers. Large numbers of individuals have found refuge there for the night against the pitlless storm, some of whom are objects of commiseration.

There is, however, this reason, a double reason, no observing this rule, the probability being that in a short time prices will be higher than now by a considerable per centage. The well-known old dry goods house of Messrs. Cooper & Conard, Ninth and Market strets, as usual, leads the van in this important department of staples, having purchased sheavily when muslins were at their lowest figures, and being determined to give their customers the advantage of this inct until their present supply is exhausted. Crowds or purchasers now throng the tage of this fact until their present supply is exhausted. Crowds or purebasers now throng the store, and they are obtaining bargains, not only in Bleached and Unblesched Auslins, of every grade and width, but in Cloths, Cassimeres, Cloakings, and Boys' Wear; table damasks, napkins, tickings, black alpacas, deialines, quilts, blankets in every variety, and other dry goods, of which their stock is one of the largost and most attractive in the city. The reputation of Messrs. Cooper & Conard for selling good goods at moderate prices is proverbial.

SILVER MINING COMPANY,

FOR MINING IN NEVADA.

CAPITAL ..... $1,000,000

SHARES $10.

DIRECTORS:

GEORGE STILLE, President. DR. R. P. HARRIS, Vice-President.

R. P. KING. CHARLES HILLBORN, WILLIAM STEFFE, B. B. FITTS.

SILAS BETTS, Treasurer.

HARRISON GRAMBO, Secretary.

G. P. FITTS, Mining Engineer, Canon City, Nevada.

OFFICE,

No. 432 CHESNUT STREET. SECOND STORY,

PHILADELPHIA.

The Directors of the FRANKLIN SILVER MINING COMPANY invite investments in no doubtful enterprise. They have secured two mines ot ascertained richness, in Big Creek Mining District, Lander county, Nevada, situated but one and a half miles from Canton City, and about ten miles from Austin.

Their ledges are of great width, rich in surface indications, and at a depth of only sixty feet, the continuation of their property, yielded ore that paid $215 per ton, worked by the rudest method.

For one-half interest in a location adjoining the "CUSTOM-HOUSE" LEDGE, upon the same vein of ore, an offer of $150,000 in coin was refused. This "CUSTOM-HOUSE" LEDGE, of which 2000 feet belongs to this Company, is exceedingly rich, and so located that a tunnel 200 feet in length will strike the ledge at a depth of 200 feet below its outcrop. Longer tunnels will strike the ledge at proportionately greater depths. Work upon this tunnel is being presecuted with the utmost vigor. It can be continued all winter, and rich "pay-rock" will be ready at an early day for reduction at the mills, already located at a short distance, and favorable arrangements are already made for crushing the ores of the Company until such time as their own works are erected. The "PRICE CURRENT" Ledge of 2000 feet in length is located on the opposite side of the same

Canon as the ledge already described. It is about eight feet in width, with well-defined casings, crops out nearly its whole length, and crossing the summit of the ridge which divides Perkins' Canon from Brooks' Canon, it presents favorable conditions for development from either valley.

A suitable description of these properties cannot be given in a few words; full information may be obtained at the office of the Company.

The advantages of a choice among many good locations have been secured by the personal inspection of a representative of the Company, of practical mining experience. From his detailed reports, the Company are assured of the great value and richnes of their property, and arrangements are made for prosecuting the business with vigor, economy, and despatch.

Twenty-five thousand shares of the stock of the Company will be sold on account of Working Capital. No other stock is offered for sale. Subscription Books will open January 15, at the Office, No. 432 CHESNUI Street (up stairs). 110wsw3t
